Read each text. Then fill in the circle that best completes each sentence or answers each question.

- A. Did you know that giant otters live in South America's Amazon region? These water-loving creatures can grow as long as six feet. They prowl in the Amazon in packs. Banding together helps them hunt for fish and protect their babies from crocodiles. Giant otters also speak their own unique language. Whistles, whines, squeals, and snorts are all part of the otter's vocabulary. Each sound means a different thing. If a giant otter thinks a human hunter is getting too close, it will snort "pffftt"! This sound warns other otters of danger. Giant otters have to warn each other a lot. Because of hunting, there are now only about 4,000 of these creatures left.
